The comparative impact of social relationships on reduction in mortality

Julianne Holt-Lunstad

Longevity and social contact

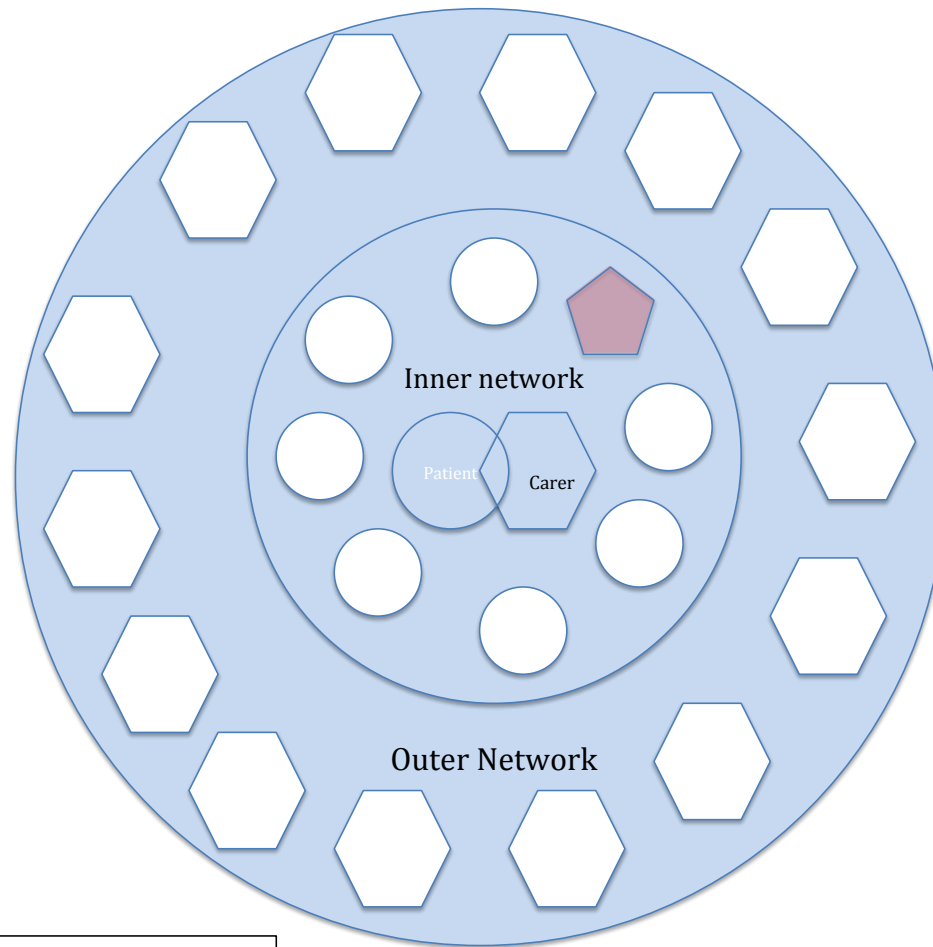

- Biggest single factor in longevity, particularly face to face contact (Pinker 2015, The village effect: How face-to-face contact can make us healthier and happier) is social contact
- A fundamental aspect of what keeps us alive, part of human evolution, part of 60 million years of primate evolution
- A new dimension into medicine
- Compassionate cities is a way of building this into life in multiple settings

- Put your hand in the air if you have known someone who close to you who died within the last year?

What really matters

- To be surrounded by the people we know and love in the places we know and love.
- Living with a terminal illness is more important than dying from one.
- The caring network is the unit of care – what we do is not limited to the person with the illness

Palliative Care – The New Essentials

Hierarchy of Well Being

NEGATIVE CONSEQUENCES

POSITIVE OUTCOMES

Poor work experience, increased social isolation, stress, civic societal impacts

Compassionate city charter

Bedrock of support, engagement post bereavement, increased social contact, social cohesion & inclusion

Carer exhaustion, morbidity and mortality, emergency admissions, long term psychological trauma, long term ill health

Compassionate communities

Resilient supportive networks, strengthened relationships into bereavement, increased home deaths

Poor care planning, poor coordination, emergency admission to hospital, poor symptom control

Generalist palliative care

Every death captured, good symptom control, good bereavement care, coordinated care

Poor symptom control, lack of equity, poor death outcomes, increased institution usage

Specialist palliative care

Good symptom control, integrated with primary care, good coordination

an opportunity to reimagine palliative care

Compassionate Cities are communities that recognize that all natural cycles of sickness and health, birth and death, and love and loss occur everyday within the orbits of its institutions and regular activities. A compassionate city is a community that recognizes that care for one another at times of crisis and loss is not simply a task solely for health and social services but is everyone's responsibility.

Compassionate City Charter

- Systematic way of ensuring we build compassionate communities in all sectors
- Educational institutions, workplaces, trade unions, health and social care institutions, religious institutions, neighbourhoods, homeless and vulnerable amongst others
- Incentive schemes and awards at civic level
- Policy change to support compassionate communities

Compassionate Community Networks

Aims

- Palliative and end of life care for all, irrespective of diagnosis and age
- Includes all forms of death – sudden, suicide, accidents, pet loss
- Integrates chronic illness with death and bereavement
- Transforms communities – inclusive of neighbourhoods through to institutions and workplaces

Compassionate organisations

Developing and promoting a happy, compassionate and positive workforce can deliver a number of measurable benefits, including:

- Reducing the risk of mental health problems
- Building closer bonds between team members
- Improving the mood and atmosphere within an organisation
- Increased commitment to work
- Reduced rates of absenteeism
- Increased employee wellbeing and productivity
- Improved customer service delivery
- Decreased employee disputes
- Reduced staff turnover

Compassionate workplaces

1. Creation of compassionate policies built on existing HR policies, allowing people to have time off for funeral planning and attendance, take loved ones to hospital and understanding that during stressful times, work place performance may be affected.
2. Asking staff to volunteer to be a 'Compassionate Friend' providing emotional support and to be a listening ear, to
3. Creating a volunteer 'bank' of people who are prepared to do tasks, such as giving lifts, covering colleagues at work, collecting children from school, helping with shopping etc

Lessons

- Compassion is not limited to particular areas
- Cynicism can be changed.
- Values are important to everyone
- Our identities include a compassionate nature. Bringing this into the workplace makes an enormous difference.

Other actions

- What does this mean for trade unions?
- Religious organisations?
- Media?
- Museums and galleries?

Steering committee

- Build relationships
- Start with enthusiasts
- Don't wait for everyone to be ready
- Needs leadership
- Participatory community development principles are key
- Personalise it!
- Be systematic

Quarterly emergency admissions Frome and Somerset 2013 - 7

Frome emergency admissions

Somerset emergency admissions

Cost implications of Frome Model

- Cost of all admissions Frome in 2013 - 2014 = £5,755,487
- Cost all admissions Frome 2016 -2017 = £4,560,421
- Reduction Frome between 2013 -4 and 2016 - 7 = £1,195,066.

This was a 21% reduction in actual cost between 2013 and 2016

This was a 21% increase in costs of admissions in Somerset excluding Frome during the same period.

Application of Frome model would have saved Somerset £35 million – total budget £700 million
